

A
HU 338.89.1.1

348852
5.4.38.

CLASS OF 1889.

SIXTH ANNUAL BULLETIN, 1920-1921.

MARRIAGES.

R. C. Curran to Edith Waterman, at New York, N. Y., July 7, 1916 (not previously reported).

F. Green to Lois Shepherd Chew, at Plattsburgh, N. Y., Sept. 7, 1920.

DEATHS.

W. D. Clark, June 19, 1920, at Flushing, N. Y.

P. F. Hall, May 28, 1921, at Brookline, Mass.

J. T. Malone, Dec. 1, 1920, at New York, N. Y.

C. A. Rich, Aug. 9, 1919, at New Haven, Conn. (not previously reported).

A. Trail, May 3, 1921, at Frederick, Md.

P. Van Du Zee, Aug. 4, 1920, at New York, N. Y.

NEW ADDRESSES.

(Home)

H. B. Crowl, 2884 West Grant Boulevard, Detroit, Mich.

R. C. Curran, Clinton Road, West Caldwell, N. J.

A. Dorr, 192 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

A. Goadby, Lawrence, N. Y.

G. H. Gray, Union Club, New York, N. Y.

B. G. Gunther, East Putnam Ave., Greenwich, Conn.

E. L. Jellinek, Hotel Lenox, North St., Buffalo, N. Y.

G. S. Macpherson, 57 Spruce St., Asheville, N. C.

G. H. Mairs, St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.

G. H. Maynadier, 10 Ware Hall, Cambridge, Mass.

E. W. McClellan, 196 South St., Red Bank, N. J.

J. W. Merrill, 16 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass.

H. W. Packard, 18 Symonds St., Salem, Mass.

R. Salisbury, 402 Hillside Ave., Orange, N. J.

E. E. Shumaker, 40 Park St., Adams, Mass.

J. S. Stone, 286 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass.

G. Wentworth, 1688 Beacon St., Brookline, Mass.

(Business)

M. A. Kilvert, 300 Law Exchange, Jacksonville, Fla.
G. W. Lee, Boston Public Library, Boston, Mass.
C. S. Martin, 115 Broad St., New York, N. Y.
C. C. McGehee, 726 Atlanta Trust Co. Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
J. W. Smith, 35 Nassau St., New York, N. Y.
E. Wardman, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y.
C. Warren, Mills Building, Washington, D. C.
T. Woodbury, Care Equitable Trust Company, 23 Rue de la Paix, Paris, France.

COMMENCEMENT DAY, 1920.

At the informal Class Dinner, June 23, 1920, held at the University Club, Boston, the following 26 men were present: Brewster, Burr, Cabot, Crocker, DeBlois, Durfee, Faxon, Grew, Gunther, Hight, A. D. Hodges, Holliday, Hunneman, King, Latimer, Perry, Reynolds, Richardson, Ropes, Slattery, Shuman, Townsend, Ward, C. Warren, B. C. Weld, Wentworth; the Class Secretary presided.

At 12 Hollis on Commencement Day, the following 30 men were present, the Class Secretary presiding: Bigelow, Bunker, Burr, Butterworth, Faxon, Grew, A. D. Hodges, Holliday, Hunneman, King, Latimer, Litchfield, Maynadier, Moore, Morgan, Newell, Perry, Phelps, Reynolds, Ropes, Saunders, P. S. Sears, Shuman, Taylor, F. W. Thayer, Townsend, Ward, C. Warren, Wentworth and Whitney.

At the Class Meeting, the vacancy on the Class Committee caused by the death of Herbert H. Darling was filled by the election of Allston Burr; the vacancy caused by the death of Franklin E. Parker was filled by the election of Morton D. Hull; Allston Burr was appointed as Treasurer, and James G. King as Chairman of the Class Committee.

CLASS NEWS.

C. C. Batchelder is Resident Trade Commissioner of the United States at Calcutta, India. He has published various articles on Siberia, China, and Manchuria in the reports of the Department of Commerce.

P. Bartholow has published "Machine Dying" (tr. from the German).

A. Burr is traveling in Europe.

R. W. Bush took a trip to the Pacific Coast last September and met in Santa Barbara, Calif., G. W. Weld, Isham, and C. Warren.

R. C. Cabot had an interesting article in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin May 5, 1921, on Alfred T. White of Brooklyn, N. Y., the benefactor of the Department of Social Ethics, of which Cabot is Professor.

D. H. Clark made a trip to the Philippines, China, Manchuria and Japan during the past year.

Walter Daniel Clark died at his home in Flushing, Long Island, New York, June 19, 1920. Clark was born at Geneva, Switzerland, April 4, 1868, and was the son of Cyrus and Julia Antoinette (Requa) Clark of New York City. After attending Phillips Exeter Academy, he entered college in the fall of 1885. He played on the Freshman Ball Team, was an editor of the Harvard Crimson, and a Member of the Institute, D. R. E., Delta Phi, Pudding, O. K. Conference Franchise, Harvard Union, and the Exeter Club. After studying at the Columbia Law School, 1889-1891, he was admitted to the New York Bar in 1891, and ever since practiced law in New York City; in 1891-1892 with Root & Clark; 1892-1898, with Sanger & Davis; 1898-1910, by himself, and since 1910 as a member of Ingram, Root, Massey & Clark. He married Alice Marshall Westervelt in New York, Oct. 25, 1894, who survives him, with three children, Walter Daniel Clark, Jr. (born in April 18, 1898), Anna Titus Clark (born Nov. 14, 1899), Julia Regina Clark (July 1, 1902). During the war he was a private in the Veteran Corps of Artillery, N. Y., 7th Battery, and his son, Walter Daniel Clark, Jr. (Harvard, '20), was a second Lieutenant in the Aviation Service.

Walter was one of the most devoted loyal members of the Class of 1889. His cheery presence at all of our reunions was always looked forward to. His genuineness of thought and action, his freedom from pose, and his simple devotion to his ideals in life and business made him a man of value to the community and to his Class and to his College.

R. C. Curran, who has been listed as "lost" for many years, writes to the Secretary that he was married July 7, 1916, at New York, to Miss Edith Waterman; that he is interested in the optical instrument line of work and is living in West Caldwell, N. J.

E. B. Dahlgren has been seriously ill for over a year.

C. B. Davenport has written "Army Anthropology" in the Medical Department, U. S. Army, in the World War, Part I (with Maj. A. G. Love); also "Defects Found in Drafted Men" (War Dept., 1920).

G. L. DeBlois, since the death of C. E. Cotting, has succeeded him as treasurer of the Fifty Associates, and the State Street Exchange, and as trustee of various real estate and personal trusts.

C. B. Dunlap has been made Professor of Neuropathology in University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York, and has become a member of the Harvey Society and the American Medico-Psychological Society.

R. N. Durfee has been elected President of the Fall River Historical Society (recently incorporated).

W. S. Ellis has been appointed by the Governor as a member of the Pennsylvania State Game Commission.

F. Green will give a course on Carriers at the Leland Stanford University Law School this summer.

C. Greene has been a director of the American Society of Civil Engineers since January, 1920.

Prescott Farnsworth Hall died at Brookline, Mass., May 28, 1921. He was born September 27, 1868, at Boston, Mass., the son of Samuel and Mary Elizabeth (Farnsworth) Hall. He prepared for College at G. W. Noble's School in Boston. In College, he attained high rank as a scholar, and was a member of the Hasty Pudding, O. K., Signet, Finance Club, Philosophical Club, Deutscher Verein, and St. Paul's Society. After graduating from the Law School in 1892, he practiced law with R. M. Morse and with Ball & Tower in Boston, until 1894; from 1894 to 1907 he was a member of the firm of Adler & Hall, and from 1907 he practiced alone. In 1894 he was one of the founders (with Ward and C. Warren) of the Immigration Restriction League, of which he was its Secretary for many years. His thorough research, his book and numerous articles on immigration made him a leading authority on the subject; to his persistent work is due much of the improvement in the legislation of the United States on immigration; and he may be justly regarded as the chief factor in the enactment of the educational test for immigrants. He was Chairman of the Committee on Immigration of the Eugenics Section of the American Genetic Association for many years. He also took a great interest in psychical research and occult matters, as to which wrote many articles. He took an active part in politics at one time, being Secretary in 1901 and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic Club of Massachusetts from 1902 to 1904; and he served on the Brookline Town Committee in 1903. He was a member of the Bostonian Society, the Rosicrucian Society, the American Society for Psychical Research; he was Vice-President of the Economic Club of Boston in 1914; President of the Brookline Education Society in 1903. His legal writings are considered as standard authority; see Massachusetts Wills Construed (1898); Massachusetts Business Corporations (1903, 1908, 1917); Examination of Land Titles in Massachusetts (1902); Massachusetts Law of Landlord and Tenant (1899) (1908).

For the past five years he suffered greatly from ill health and withdrew himself largely from participation in Class reunions. He was married at North East Harbor, Maine, to Florence Gardiner, September 24, 1895, from whom he was divorced in 1904; he married at Denver, Colo., October 17, 1908, Eva Lucyle Irby, who survives him.

The following fine tribute by Joseph Lee, '83, was published in the Boston Herald, June, 1921:

"Although Prescott F. Hall was practically unknown to the public, he had when he died probably done more to affect for the better the future of this country than almost any man of his generation.

"He saw nearly thirty years ago what others began to see during the war, that the most important question for this country was the kind of human material of which its future citizenship should be composed, and that its mission was not to be an asylum and a breeding ground for the defective and the oppressed—the beaten members of the beaten races—but to be an example of successful democracy and of the attainment to a high standard of character and happiness. He saw that it would benefit a nation very little if it gained a wide reputation for philanthropy and lost its own soul.

"Mr. Hall, accordingly, initiated the agitation for restricting immigration that was to occupy the greater part of his time and all of his heart during the rest of his life. The final success of the literacy test in 1917 marked the close of what must have been, I think, the longest legislative fight on record. The adoption of the present more satisfactory percentage bill came just in time for him to hear of the victory before he died.

"During all these years Mr. Hall kept track of immigration laws and of their administration and their results in a most able and painstaking manner, and was the backbone of the agitation for restriction on the technical and legal side. Without him the gates would have still been unguarded and the deterioration of our human standard would still be at the flood.

"Mr. Hall's work was unknown, unpaid, unrecognized. It was a sheer labor of love, the love of country and consideration for the future of mankind. But it achieved success, and that was, after all, the only recompense that he desired."

T. Harrington has entered the ranks of the Class Grand-fathers, his daughter, who married David Worth Bagley, having a son, born at The Hague, December 7, 1920.

T. S. Hathaway has been elected President of the New Bedford Institution for Savings, President of St. Luke's Hospital.

E. W. Hawley has been nominated again as candidate for Alderman in Minneapolis, Minn.

J. E. Homans has taken out letters patent for "an apparatus for and method of transmitting photographs and other pictures telegraphically."

M. D. Hull is a Vice President of the National Municipal League, and a director of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute.

R. Isham is President of the University Club of Santa Barbara, Calif.

E. L. Jellinek has dissolved his law partnership in Buffalo, but will continue his law practice under the name of Shire & Jellinek.

M. A. Kilvert will be in Mexico this summer.

G. D. Latimer is passing the year in France.

G. W. Lee is the prime mover in establishing the "Extension Service," a quasi-public organization for the purpose of doing things for which there is no definite or adequate agent; his headquarters are at the Boston Public Library.

H. B. Lathrop has published "The Art of the Novelist" (1919); "Freshman Composition" (1920).

W. J. Latta's wife died Jan. 14, 1921.

P. M. Lydig is now in France; he has deposited with the Class Secretary for the benefit of the Class and for such future use or publication as it may deem wise his diary as liaison officer, A. E. F., with the French Ministry of War, January 1, 1918, to March 9, 1919.

W. M. Magee was re-elected last fall a Member of Congress from Syracuse, N. Y.; he is a member of the Committee on Appropriations.

G. H. Mairs has returned from France, and his address is St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.

James Thomas Malone died in New York City, N. Y., December 1, 1920. He was born at Norwich, Conn., January 9, 1865, the son of James and Bridget (Donnelly) Malone. Educated at Phillips Exeter Academy, he entered college in 1885 as a special student and became a regular member of our class in Sophomore year. After graduation, he went to New York, studied law in the office of Billings & Cardozo, was admitted to the bar in 1892, and in February, 1893, was appointed Assistant Corporation Counsel of New York City, holding that position until December 31, 1907, and having special charge of tax, real estate, and contract matters and condemnation proceedings and the great mass of lawsuits growing out of the annexation of Queens County. In 1907, he was elected a Judge of the Court of General Sessions for the term of fourteen years, of which he had served thirteen at the time of his death. Although a member of Tammany, he was indorsed for the judgeship by the Citizens' Union, and since, upon his election, he announced that he had laid aside politics, Tammany dropped him from its general committee within a year. The New York Press of February 21, 1909, stated that Malone was the first Harvard man ever elected to the bench in New York County.

The best characterization of his splendid and fearless judicial services was given in the New York Evening Post, May 16, 1912, as follows:

"Since James T. Malone has been on the General Sessions bench, he has been distinguished among his associates because of his strictness. If any prosecutor, investigator, or civic body has assailed his conduct, nobody heard about it. In short, one hears only good said of Malone, except among criminals, their lawyers and their political backers. * * * The idea with which he went to his work in the criminal courts was that their authority in the community would be enhanced, and lawlessness generally decreased, if the sentences imposed upon convicted criminals were more severe, more frequently up to the limits provided by the statutes. That belief led him to impose heavier punishments than had been known hereabouts. He has kept up the pace he started. * * * When a criminal is coming to trial in New York County, his lawyer uses every possible device to have the case brought before a judge other than Malone. Every excuse for a delay is utilized when a prisoner is about to be arraigned in Malone's division. In places where thieves gather, the stories of trials and sentences in Malone's court are related with fear and wonder. A surprise furnished by Malone about two years ago was the appointment of W. B. Hornblower, Delancy Nicoll, and Samuel Untermeyer as counsel for prisoners too poor to employ lawyers. The naming of the leading members of the bar for such tasks was extraordinary. * * * 'I have determined,' he says, 'that such friendless and penniless persons shall have the help of the best counsel that I can provide for them. I have the power to assign any attorney whom I may wish for that purpose. I shall appoint, therefore, in all such cases the most capable and prominent lawyers of the New York Bar, irrespective of whether they have ever defended in a capital case. I believe that the very best men at the bar should leave their civil work under such circumstances and give something back to humanity.' ”

On the day of his death, his associate, Judge Bradley, said that his record was “illustrative of virtue, honor, courage and integrity. He never faltered in his duty toward the people and never betrayed their cause.” Another associate, Judge Wadham, termed him “a man of learning, ability and dignity, who served the community with distinction and filled the imagination with the picture of a judge.” An upright and discriminating Judge, a true and just man, Malone did honor to our Class, and his loss so early in life is deplorable. He was married September 4, 1895, to Mary Frances Reilly, of New York, who survives him with five children: Lott Frances (born December 10, 1896), Nancy (born January 2, 1900), Lenore (born October 15, 1903), James Thomas (born November 11, 1905), and Molly (born June 6, 1909).

W. R. Marsh is a member of the Commission on Higher Education for the Middle States and Maryland.

E. W. McClellan, who has been listed among the “lost men,” writes to the Secretary: “Please note that I am still alive. The report that I was missing was greatly exaggerated.” He is living at Red Bank, N. Y.

C. C. McGehee has retired from the management of the Southern Department of the Home Life Insurance Co. in Atlanta, to devote his time to personal affairs.

C. H. Moore is President of the Board of Trustees of the Brimmer School, Boston, and of the Board of Trustees of the New Ipswich Appleton Academy, New Ipswich, N. H. As President of the American Philological Association. He delivered the address at its annual meeting in Baltimore December 28, 1920, on “Prophecy and the Ancient Epic.”

J. H. Morse is a Trustee and Member of the Board of Investment of the Essex Savings Bank in Lawrence, Mass.

W. W. Naumburg is traveling now in Spain.

W. H. Pear has been appointed one of the Special Lecturers in the Department of Social Ethics at Harvard for the year 1921-'22.

R. F. Perkins is living now in Santa Barbara, Calif.

O. Prescott was elected a director of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. in February, 1921, and a Vice President of the New Bedford Institution for Savings.

C. H. Palmer has been awarded the Medaille de la Reconnaissance Francaise with citation by the French Government for work in France with the American Red Cross during the war.

W. F. Pillsbury has been elected a member of the New York and of the Boston Stock Exchanges.

Charles Averell Rich died at New Haven, Conn., August 9, 1919. Rich was born at Canton, N. Y., October 16, 1867, and was the son of Rev. William Alexander and Sarah Laura (Carter) Rich. After graduating from St. Lawrence University in 1887, he entered Harvard in the fall of 1888, being with the Class during Senior year. He was a Member of the Beta Theta Pi and Finance Club. From 1889 to 1892, he was a graduate student and Assistant at Harvard in the Jefferson Physical Laboratory. From 1892 to 1898 he was associated successively with the Waddell-Entz Electric Co. at Bridgeport, Conn., the Westinghouse Electric Co. at Pittsburgh, and the Walker Electric Co., of Cleveland, in New York, and New Haven. After 1905, he was engaged at New Haven in the design and development of an invention. Rich was never married. Outside of his business, he was especially interested in the relations between public service corporations and municipalities, and devoted time and effort, as he wrote in 1914, "toward securing equity in these relations in my own city. The thought that one has been out on the firing line (even in one small battle) of the world-old conflict between the forces of privilege and the desire for equality of opportunity does afford some satisfaction, albeit the sense of achievement is necessarily limited." These words written by Rich fairly portray his character.

J. H. Ropes has been in Europe during the first half of the present college year.

E. E. Shumaker has been Pastor of the First Congregational Church of Adams, Mass., since February 1, 1921.

W. H. Siebert has published "The Loyalists of Pennsylvania" (Ohio State University Bulletin, April 1, 1920) and "Kentucky's struggle with its Loyalist Proprietors" (Miss. Valley Hist. Rev., September, 1920).

J. W. Smith is practicing law in the firm of Lowther & Smith in New York.

L. F. Snow will be Professor of English at the University of Chattanooga, Chattanooga, Tenn., after September 1, 1921.

S. W. Sturm is on the executive committee of the Cincinnati and Hamilton County Community Chest.

P. D. Trafford argued before the Supreme Court last winter in Central Union Trust v. Garvan. The case involving the construction of the Trading with the Enemy Act, drafted by C. Warren, and the Court held that the statute means what Warren intended it to mean.

Paul Van Du Zee died at New York, N. Y., August 4, 1920. He was born at West Newton, Mass., September 8, 1866, and was the son of Ira Daniel and Jane Sturtevant (Drew) Van Du Zee, of Boston. After being with the Class as a special student during Freshman year, he entered College in the fall of 1886, but left shortly on account of ill health, finally graduating, however, with the Class of 1890. After acting in the South as a civil engineer for a year, he was engaged in newspaper work in Boston and New York from 1891 to 1900. In 1900, he entered the bond business, opening an office in New York for the banking house of S. D. Loring & Son. He was later connected with E. H. Rollins & Co., Bankers, and later with Bonbright & Co. Van Du Zee was never married. He was a brother-in-law of our classmate, Potter.

R. DeC. Ward has been re-elected President of the American Meteorological Society for the year 1921; he delivered the annual address at its annual meeting in Chicago, December 29, 1920, on "Climate and Health with Special Reference to the United States." He delivered a lecture on "Meteorology and the Art of War" at the General Staff, War College, in Washington, and at Johns Hopkins University, May 9, 1921.

G. F. Weld is President of the Harvard Club and of the Cosmopolitan Club at Santa Barbara, Calif.; he was elected also representative from the Diocese of Los Angeles to the Province of the Pacific.

T. Woodbury is now living in Paris, France.

'89 AND THE UNIVERSITY.

J. D. Merrill and C. H. Moore are on the Board of Directors of the Harvard Alumni Association. J. D. Merrill is also Editor of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin and one of the three members of the Committee on Harvard War Records. M. D. Hull served on the Committee on Service to the University of the Associated Harvard Clubs; he was one of the candidates for Overseer on the Postal Card Ballot.

Through the indefatigable exertions of the Class of 1889 Harvard Endowment Fund Committee, and especially of Reynolds and Townsend, the amount contributed by '89 as reported April 30, 1921, was $408,173, and the percentage of contributors of its active membership was 94.6 per cent. At that date, '89 had the highest percentage of contributors of any Class since the Class of '65 with the exception of '08 (with a percentage of 95.4 per cent) and of '91 (with a percentage of 94.7 per cent). Only '98, '92, and '97 excelled '89 in amount of contribution. Since April 30, 1921, the percentage of '89 contributors has increased to 97.5 per cent; only 6 men have failed to contribute; and it is hoped that they will still come forward and make '89 a 100 per cent Class.

LOST MEN. .

The Secretary has no addresses for the following men. Will anyone who knows anything about them, or can suggest any way of getting in touch with them please notify me?

Alexander F. Adams,
Edward C. Bates,
Charles D. Gibbons,
Wilbur Fisk Stone.

